

Certificate in Gerontology Graduate Program of Study

This certificate requires completion of four courses, including one required (SOW: 5646 - Gerontological Social Work), equaling 12 credit hours. Students must take one course outside of social work. No transfer credit or substitutions are permitted. ALL courses must be completed with a grade of 'B' or higher. All coursework must be completed within four years from the time of initial enrollment.

Capstone Assignment: Before the completion of the program of studies and service component, each Certificate recipient will have written a capstone assignment consisting of a minimum of ten page paper focusing on one specific theory related to aging and a practical application of that theory related to the service component. Thus, the purpose of the capstone paper is to integrate classroom knowledge. The Certificate Director is responsible for reviewing the capstone assignment for adequacy in meeting this requirement prior to informing the student and social work office of the student's completion.

In addition to completing the required 12 semester credits of coursework, all students must successfully complete 40 hours or more of paid or volunteer experience that focuses on working with older persons. Social Work students will do this by successfully completing a gerontological field placement arranged through the College of Social Work Office of Field Education. Non-Social Work students may meet this requirement through SOW 1054-Human Service Experience or other arrangement approved by the Certificate Chair.

Course Description for SOW 5646

SOW 5646 - Gerontological Social Work introduces students to the field of social gerontology and gerontological social work. The class provides an overview of a variety of topics such as the demography of aging and the physical, cognitive, and psychosocial aspects of aging. The course also covers health care and social policies that impact older persons and caregivers, along with the aging network of services. How forms of oppression such as ageism, sexism, racism, ablebodyism, beautyism, and homophobia impact our work with older people is discussed, along with how to promote dignity, selfdetermination, and social and economic justice for older persons. The role of both informal and formal support networks is stressed as students learn to comprehensively assess older clients and devise intervention and evaluation plans.

In the event that this course is not offered in a given semester, a directed independent study can be substituted upon prior approval of the Chair of the Certificate Program and under direction of an FSU faculty member.

This course serves as the capstone course for the Certificate.

Students select three additional courses (9 semester hours) from the approved list (below). At least one course must be from a discipline outside of social work. Other coursework may be approved as appropriate.
